I tried to create a conditional formatting rule for that using a formula, but I seem to have an error that I am not able to fix. Here is the formula I tried: =AND(SUM(B2:B100)>25,B2:B100'') Where B2:B100 are the values I need to conditionally format. When I create the rule, it says "Invalid Cell" when I try to apply the format and it asks me to provide a cell reference. Any idea of what's causing the issue? A: The formula you have above should work. The problem is that you need a comma after the ">" and before the "25,B2:B100'",B2:B100'') Q: x86 assembly: LOOP store into another array I am not a fan of assembly. I have a task to do and a solution to an assembly programming exercise but I have no idea how to do it. To keep it simple. I have an array of 3 digit numbers and an array of 3 digit numbers as such: mov ax,0b800h ; map the 3 digit values in the middle mov bx,8000h ; from 1000 to 9999 mov cx,3 ; 3 element array mov al,0fah ; AX = array of 3 digit numbers ; transfer the values from the middle array
