The Chopras' last movie with Sridevika was 1973's Guddi that was a remake of an Italian movie of the same name. In the same year he made the film Rangoon (1975). After this, he worked on Bombay Talkies and Jaan-E-Mann (1977). In 1986, Bachchan collaborated with Chopra for the first time on Teesri Manzil. It was an unofficial remake of Nicolas Roeg's The Man Who Fell To Earth, and proved to be a successful venture at the box office as well as critical acclaim. Chopra would direct two more films with Bachchan, Udta Punjab (2016), and Don 2 (2018). His last movie, Thugs of Hindostan, with both Shashi Kapoor and Amitabh Bachchan, was released in 2018. Bachchan won three National Film Awards for this movie: Best Actor in a Role of a Leading Man, Best Popular Film Providing Wholesome Entertainment and Best Feature Film in Hindi He also won an award for his song from Thugs of Hindostan titled "Chaukiyan". The film was released on April 7, 2019. Bachchan played the lead role of Shankar Das, a wealthy Muslim businessman, who has a foot fetish, and secretly plans to marry his maid's daughter, Nandita Das (played by Sridevika), but he is murdered by his father's henchman Kishan Das. The film was a massive box office success. The film was a remake of the 1972 David Lean film, Lion. The movie was the fourth collaboration between Amitabh Bachchan and Yash Chopra The film took 20 years to get made. It was the most expensive Bollywood film of 2019 The first preview of the movie was in the Lakme Fashion Week held on January 5, 2016. The single print release of the movie, which first hit the Hindi film scene at Shree Prakash in Mumbai, was April 9, 2017. Its "Special" screening was held at the Zee Studios on March 1, 2017. Thugs of Hindostan was made in the same time period that Chopra and Bachchan were working on Teesri Manzil, in which their characters had many similarities. The movie released on April 7, 2019, on 15th day of its theatrical run. It broke box office records in India and was declared
