When I run the code I receive a ValueError: shapes (16, 10) and (10,) not aligned: 10 (dim 1)!= 16 (dim 0). I have no idea what this means or how to fix it. My code is: import numpy as np import keras from keras.models import Sequential from keras.layers.core import Dense from keras.layers.recurrent import LSTM m = 16 n = 10 data = np.random.rand(16, n) X = np.zeros(m*n, dtype='float32') Y = np.ones(m*n, dtype='int32') def model(): # Input Layer X = keras.layers.Input(shape=(m, n), dtype='float32') # LSTM Layer x = keras.layers.LSTM(100, activation='relu')(X) x = keras.layers.LSTM(100, activation='relu')(x) x = keras.layers.LSTM(100, activation='relu')(x) x = keras.layers.LSTM(100, activation='relu')(x) # Dense

He was named captain of the national team, leading Italy to a triumphant Euro 2016 and also won his third Golden Boot in three years. And while it's highly likely he'd leave Old Trafford for another club come January, with the clock ticking on his career as his contract runs down, the Ghanian has told The Independent that he has no plans to leave the club he made his name at. "I'll always be a Manchester United player," he said. "When you've been at a club for seven years and three of those years with the same coach, you don't just walk away. "They did well in the transfer market last year and recruited younger players to support me. All the players are also under contract. There is nothing to be said. I've been there for seven years and I always want to stay with them." He is in fact likely to extend his stay at the club he signed for as a 16-year-old in 2003. "I don't like the idea of retiring as United manager," he added. "We're all in the same boat. We're in the FA Cup final, so things can go well, and if they don't then we have the Champions League, the Premier League and the Carabao Cup. "There are always many things to do. The previous paper reported on the relationship between psychosocial factors and disease activity in children with JIA. In the present study, we will investigate the relationships between various psychosocial factors, the Health Related Quality of Life (HRQL), and disease activity in both children and parents. Rationale ===== The HRQL of patients is one of the most important clinical outcome measures. Since JIA is a chronic disease, it is important to determine the factors that affect the HRQL of children with JIA, especially their parents. The purpose of this study was to examine the relationship between various psychosocial factors and the HRQL of both children and their parents. Methods ===== Parents of 153 children with JIA (94 girls, 59 boys) aged 6 to 17 years were asked to answer the Japanese version of the Childhood Health Assessment Questionnaire (CHAQ) \[@B1\] for their children. We also used a questionnaire for the children that had been developed by the authors to investigate their HRQL. The HRQL of the children (WAS) was assessed using a Japanese version of the Health Assessment Questionnaire (JAHAQ). In addition, the following psychosocial factors were measured by parents and/or children using a questionnaire developed by the authors: 1) the level of family conflict, 2) parenting skills, 3) satisfaction with the school environment, 4) self-efficacy in coping with pain and other difficulties, 5) problem-solving skills, 6) emotional self-control, 7) moral standards, 8) bullying, and 9) self-concept. Results ===== For the CHAQ, the mean score for the children was 0.31 (SD = 0.75). The scores for the JAHAQ were 1.18 (SD = 0.68) for the children
