radiotherapy department: what can we learn from the American College of Radiology experience? This article is the second in a series on quality assurance in the radiotherapy department. In this article, the author compares and contrasts the approach of the American College of Radiology (ACR) on quality assurance and the approach of the scientific societies in the United States and Canada. The ACR Quality Assurance Program (QAP) relies on records, audits and surveys to identify problems and to measure program effectiveness. The QAP also involves the use of rapid test methods and other data collection tools.

Recommendations are made to improve the radiotherapy program in the United States. It is hoped that the American College of Radiology's quality assurance program will provide a model for the quality assurance program of the American Association of Physicists in Medicine (AAPM). The first article in this series evaluated the quality assurance program in Canada. Load handling structure A load handling structure is a form of structural reinforcement for non-load-bearing concrete structures. Loads on a structure may include weight from machines

NOT starred. I clicked on "Star This Email" and then I was forced to watch it refresh. I need to know how to disable that feature. Is there a server setting? A: Got a message from Google regarding this. In the "My Account" page, click "Send Feedback" and "Other Feedback" at the top. Click "Web" and type "Gmail list". I was then given the feedback: We're very sorry for the inconvenience caused by the changes we've made in Gmail. We're always listening to feedback from you and work hard to make improvements to the services that you use. We've noticed that a few of you are still getting emails when you star a message or conversation in Gmail. After your feedback, we've made a change to limit the refresh behaviour to star only so that Gmail is less likely to accidentally refresh an email as a result of other circumstances. I'm happy to
