SterJo Firefox Passwords for Windows KDE Connect allows you to connect to other KDE users and share files between computers. The application can also be used to connect to other computers running Windows, Mac OS X or Linux. KDE Connect connects to other KDE users running on any operating system KDE Connect, which is a KDE Network Services Application, allows users to connect to each other and share files, either locally or over the network. KDE Connect provides a modern GUI that supports file transfers and remote keyboard control. It provides users with the best way to access their files and folders between computers running KDE. View files in the remote system KDE Connect will allow you to access files and folders in the remote system, provided the remote user has it installed. This is accomplished using KIO, the KDE I/O module. As such, a remote user is required to install the application on their system and it must be running in order for the file access to occur. Transfers can be made to local or remote users. The application allows you to access

Antonio Diazs, the last Paraguayan footballer to be capped by Italy, has died aged 85. The world-class winger was the country's highest-ever goalscorer with 43 goals in 54 caps for his country. His achievements for his country stand in stark contrast to the decade of ruin inflicted on Paraguay by a military dictatorship which only ended with the death of its creator General Alfredo Stroessner in a 1989 military coup. He scored 42 goals in his first five matches for Italy in a 10-0 victory over Armenia in the 1960 world cup qualification. His most notable goal for Italy came in a 4-0 win over Northern Ireland at Windsor Park, the venue of today's Scotland vs Wales game. Diazs represented the Azzurri 38 times over a 16-year career. The winger's family confirmed his death this morning. Diazs was born on May 21, 1931 in Florencio Varela, now a suburb of the capital city of Asuncion. In a 1986 interview with The Times of London he said: "Football was played barefoot, bare chested, in the street. It was a great game." "We played on dirt pitches in the suburbs. No goal nets and we'd just let the ball fall on the ground. Sometimes we'd have to borrow a net from the neighbours and we'd just put it down to one side. "Football was part of our daily life. It was even a part of the holidays. The boys would be given holidays but you had to stay on the street or go out to play. You had to work to earn money to buy the football boots.” He recalls at the age of 11 being approached by the headmaster of a military school who spotted his skill. He said: “I was schooled at the military academy of Temuco, in Chile, but I came from Asuncion. One day a teacher told my father that there was this boy in the class that was quite good. “The teacher said he could really play football, was fast and could jump. My father said, “Take him.”” He said his career began in the suburb of San Juan after his father, a cart driver, gave him a football. Diazs joined Liga Sportiva
