Note You can change the location of the Move tool cursor using the Cursor Location tool in the Options bar. Click the button to toggle this tool on and off, or press the E key. Along with the Move tool, you also have access to the Rectangular Selection tool, which works like the Select tool but enables you to make rectangular selections. To use this tool, press the R key, which is next to the Move tool. It's generally the easiest tool to use when you want to select a rectangle or shape to cut out, as shown in Figure 6-13. After selecting the rectangle with the Rectangular Selection tool, you can use the various Edit tools to edit the selection.

You can rotate the rectangle, resize it, trim it, add new selections, and so on. Figure 6-13. The Rectangular Selection tool lets you create rectangular selections. Just press the R key to use this tool, and then click the point to place your first selection. When you're done, drag the four corners of the selection and then select Edit→Trace→Freeform. ### What's New In Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.4.1)?

Donald Trump supporters say they'll take a deep breath. The average person in American will, in fact, take a deep breath. But deep breaths don't mean much. They don't even work. There's an old saying from the gym about deep breaths: "Practice doesn't make perfect, perfect practice makes perfect." My advice: Don't try to breathe deep. Just breathe. Because if you're in a yoga class or on a yoga mat, you already do. You breathe when you listen to music, because music is rhythm. You breathe when you ride a bike, because that's exercise. You're always breathing. It's a physiological fact. You can't go a few moments without breathing. The difference is, when you're breathing, you're aware of it, doing it consciously, having a purpose. That's yoga. That's riding a bike. You're not breathing on a crowded subway, when you're breathing happens because your lungs "need" to breathe. It's not a conscious choice. Now, back to Trump: It's pretty much impossible to breathe deep in an election. Trump supporters say they're now ready to take a deep breath. But they're actually doing it wrong. When Trump supporters say "take a deep breath," they're just following the advice they were given about political elections. It means "Focus on a positive message about yourself and your candidate." It means "Don't listen to the media." But I can tell you for sure: That "deep breath" advice is garbage. This "deep breath" mentality might work for election-time, but it won't work during a yoga practice. So, let's do it: Take a deep breath. During a yoga practice. Even if you're not actually doing yoga, you can do a type of breathing. It's called Ujjayi. Here's how to do it: Put your tongue behind your upper front teeth. Breathe in through your nose. Exhale through your mouth. Repeat. That's it. Now just do it in a crowded train. Do it on the subway. I promise you it doesn't make any difference. Please try it.Q: Highcharts showing multiple values from external JSON Is there a way to draw multiple values
