History In 1893, E. A. Mann was directed by the U.S. Lighthouse Service to build a 150 foot 1-1/4 story white frame lighthouse on a shoal of rocks called the Elkhart Groves. The light consisted of a double-peaked skeletal tower placed on a row of iron beams that were attached to large granite blocks. The row of blocks was placed on top of a ledge of rock so the rock would not sink into the water during high tides. The lighthouse was lit twice a day, first on the morning of Easter Sunday, and again on Christmas Eve. The light was kept burning until 1940 when it was automated. The tower became a part of the Elkhart State Hospital grounds in 1958. The Elkhart Groves Easter Sunrise Light is located at 3506 S. Lake Shore Drive. It was added to the National Register of Historic Places on September 23, 2007.
