A new spider species has been discovered in Israel, a rare find in such a small country. It's called the Indus Spiny Spider, found in the Umm al-Fahm region, and since its discovery has been found in many other places around the world. Ecology students Ziv Hausman and Karina Katz found the spider while working in the Dead Sea. "Nature has a way of surprising you and you meet something you didn't expect," Katz said. The spider is black with a yellow and white chevron pattern on the cephalothorax, or mid-body section of the spider. The two students' spider was also found in an orchard in the Chula Valley, on the campus of the Ben Gurion University, in the Tel Aviv region and in a bus. Katz said the spiders were found 570a42141b
