Cartoon Me

This is a tool that allows you to create and share funny drawings. After picking an item in your image it will be scanned and analyzed. Then, you will be able to add effects to the scanned object and save the result. This tool is a simple, easy-to-use and quick way to create funny drawings. How to use: 1) Choose the item in your photo from the list of supported formats: JPG, PNG, TIF, BMP and GIF. Press "Scan" or press the button and select an item from your photo. 2) The scanning process will be completed. In the list of items, choose the desired effect by clicking on it. 3) If the item you want to affect is inside an image or in the clipboard, press "Paste". Otherwise, you can use the "Add Image" or "Add Clipboard" command. 4) Once the scanning process is done, you will be able to add new effects to the scanned object. Simply select an effect from the list and press "Apply". You can also quickly use the "Effects" button in order to see the main effects to apply to each item. 5) You can also change the color of an object, crop the image and resize it. Simply press the desired command on the main panel. 6) The app will save the result into the default photo folder. In this way, it will be possible to change the size and position of the scanned item, use the rotate function, add new effects to the scanned object, crop the image and fit it to the window. All these processes can be carried out on each photo stored to your photo gallery and easily repeated in future. Note: Make sure to update the app before running it. Add practical effects to your pictures with Cartoon Me. It provides you with a set of filters and editing options to easily alter the image.The business school of the University of Exeter has pulled out of an open competition that could have seen it choose a judge. The University has joined the University of Sheffield, University of Bristol, University of Southampton, University of Kent, University of Plymouth and the University of Manchester in not taking part in the judging panel of the Chartered Management Institute's (CMI) awards for Excellence in Management Education. The U of Exeter says that the results of the open competition for the new awards programme were announced this week and it is too early to decide whether it is prepared to bid to the next competition, which is due to run in 2012. Alan Swinnerton, senior lecturer at the school of business, said: "We are reviewing the situation and will make a decision at the appropriate time. We have, however, looked carefully at the criteria and feel that it would be premature to enter." The CMI will continue to run the awards programme independently. It has previously said that the awards competition will be on an open and transparent basis and that an independent judge will be appointed, as is common in the UK. The new awards programme will replace the Graduate Management Education Awards and will replace the Marketing Managers Awards and will help find and reward the best management education teaching. The new awards panel will include: Lord (Brian) Jones, chairman of the University of Leeds Business School; Lord (Martin) Mynott, chancellor of the University of Essex and former director of the Institute of Marketing and Management; Dr Bob Watson, principal of Heriot-Watt Business School; Dr Richard Smith, vice-chancellor of Cardiff Business School; and Dr Michael O'Byrne, vice-chancellor of the University of Surrey. Dr Mynott said: "The quality of teaching, learning and research in management education will be evaluated independently by a panel of judges. The aim is to distinguish the best universities in this sphere, and this will be judged by an independent panel." The new awards will include an assessment of the extent to which the quality of teaching is matched by the quality of the student experience. The awards will also include an assessment of the research infrastructure and the availability of best practice models for developing students' careers. The awards will be judged by a panel of 1d6a3396d6

ROOT REQUIREDXPOSED FRAMEWORK REQUIREDIF You dont know What is XPOSED Framework then do not try this application (it wont work)Hi Guys,I read about the Xposed framework in xda and other websites.THis is a application that will add some features to your application.To get started,you need to select the version of Xposed that you want to use.A nightlies version is available.You can find it in the link below.If you have any questions,feel free to ask. Last week, we posted news that Twitter will be adding a native "send" button to the tweet form. The feature has been in testing since then, but the button is now finally live for everyone. Not only can you now send a direct message directly to a user from the tweet form, but the button also adds the address of the sender to the profile, which isn't an issue since the user can view it anyway. HTC is very active in the smartphone market these days. Their HTC Hero is getting a little slimmer and has been getting some new features that are rather interesting. It's been awhile since a HTC smartphone has been as popular as the Hero, and they're still trying to bring in new customers. I had a chance to review this phone and was asked to write a review. Here is what I think. The Good Smartphone The Hero is a very slick looking phone and doesn't look too bad at all. It's got a nice 3.2" screen, and feels very comfortable to hold and use. The phone is also nice and lightweight, weighing only 130 grams. For a smartphone, this is pretty good. Smart Keypad The Hero's Smart keypad is very convenient and lets you type on the fly. This was a feature that you could only get on Blackberries, until now. It's very useful when you need to type something quickly, and you're in a hurry. Eye-Tracking Technology The phone is designed with the capability of capturing the eyes of the user, and
