Manly Warringah Council is preparing a bid to buy and develop the former Parramatta Public School site in Manly. Wards councillor Jonathan Liu says Manly Council will announce in the coming weeks a push to invest in the site, which is bordered by Bonnyrigg Road, Jubilee and Pittwater roads. "We've got some good momentum. We're working with the Department of Education and we have support from both the Federal Government and the State Government," he said. "We would like to get a phased release of funds to start. "We're talking about a start date of four or five years down the track, but we're hoping to get some projects under way at the same time to help stimulate the Manly economy and generate jobs. "We're trying to look at doing a multi-use development. We're looking at a sports complex and an indoor tennis centre as well as incorporating some retail space." The site currently has a population of about 70,000 people and Mr Liu says it can create more than 3000 jobs. "We can't match the Parramatta site in terms of its size, but we believe that we have a role to play in stimulating the Manly economy," he said. But the idea has attracted criticism from local groups who say the site is congested and there is no need to invest in its redevelopment. "If the city has the funds to do something at this site, then that's great. But there's no evidence to support this proposal to use public funds to redevelop a site that is already covered by housing, schools, public facilities and retail," said John Carayannis, acting president of Manly Residents Association. "We have concerns around the location. We don't know how many people will want to access a site that is going to be relatively close to the beach, 1d6a3396d6
