Analyze the current market situation or get access to the best online brokers in the market Preferably position yourself for profitable trades Simulate real life situations, including those of a beginner Hang on, let's take a closer look at the app. Before you get started, Quantower suggests you connect to their servers and set up a user profile. You can choose to keep this profile private or link it to your Facebook account. Since the app is designed to work cross-platform, it doesn't matter what operating system or browser you're using. At this point, you can start setting up a trading account, which can take a few steps, depending on the broker you plan on using. As with any platform, there are always differences in the steps needed to start with one broker versus another. For instance, the broker we are using in this review is IB with an ICBAB. Now, the first step will be to create an IB account. To do this, you will need to visit the company's website and navigate to the required section. Once there, sign up with your email and use the default account information. At this point, you can sign in to your profile and select the "Account and Security Settings" tab on the top. You will need to select the option for "Terms of Service and Privacy Policy" You can also add your mobile phone number to enable SMS and phone call notifications. You will also need to agree to the Terms of Service and Privacy Policy that were automatically displayed. After that, you'll need to select the option for "Account and Security Settings" and click on the "Generate API Token" button. IB's API token is a unique string of characters you'll need to keep for future API connections. This is the token you will enter into Quantower. Keep this token private as it will be needed for future connections with this broker. After that, click on the "API Token" button. Once your account is linked, you will be able to create your first API connection. Creating a connection is as simple as typing the API token you received in the "Your Account" tab. Click the "Create API Connection" button to confirm the connection. You can now begin making API connections to receive the necessary information for the broker you selected. Now that you're connected to the broker, you can view the current market situation. To do this, you
