the mail with a script. 3) Attachments are sent with the script's path. 4) Composes the message. 5) Attaches all the attachments. 6) Sends the message. So far, so good. The script works well as an individual. The problem is, when I try to implement it as an automatic process. It does everything, except attaching the file. Here is the script: #!/bin/bash mail_user='user_mail@domain.com' mail_password='password' mail_subject='Scripts sent by the system' mail_address='root@domain.com' mail_from='mail@domain.com' echo $mail_from $mail_subject while true; do clear echo -n "enter y or n: "; read -r answer if ["$answer"!= "y"]; then break fi cd /scripts if [-d /scripts]; then read -p "Attachments (.zip) in /scripts/? " -n files $files read -p "Continue?(y/n) " -n answer fi done Thank you very much in advance. A: Use xargs to append the file names and sendmail to send the mail: #!/bin/bash
