The tool can be used to select only an entire object, or to select a specific area of an object (for example, an arm or the edge of a building). There are three different ways to select with the Magic Wand tool: * Click on a point on an object that you want to select, then click on the magic wand button. * Click once with the magic wand to select an object, then click to change the selection by one pixel. Click again to end the selection. * Press the spacebar to toggle between

Click the mouse on the image to select a new area, then click and drag the cursor to draw the selection. If you continue to hold down the Ctrl (Windows) or Cmd (Mac) button, your selection will be constrained to the area it previously selected. For example, if you select a section of a table, you can move that same area of the table using the rectangular marquee tool. The Lasso tool is used for drawing a precise selection on the edges of an object. Drag out a selection from one part of the image to the other, letting the tool do the work of drawing the boundaries of the selection area. When the mouse is released, the area is automatically filled. You can move the selection with a pinch, double-tap, hold-and-drag, or resize it with the Ctrl (Windows) or Cmd (Mac) key. You can see an image with different selection areas highlighted. To deselect an area, click anywhere outside the selection (you can even select a new area if you do it quickly enough). The Pencil tool is used for drawing the outline of an area in an image. Use the directional arrows at the top to draw the outline, then click and drag to fill the selected area.
