Guess Numbers is a game program that can be played in a variety of different ways. In essence, the game is nothing more than a test of your computational skills. The first simple rule of this game is that you need to try to guess the random number before a specified timer runs out. Another aspect that is included in the program is the ability to change the parameters for your experience. You can change the maximum guess number as well as the maximum number of guess attempts. Yet another aspect of the game is that you can mute the game while the guesses are being made. This means that as long as the game is muted, you will not hear the timer counting down and you can concentrate on the task at hand without having to worry about other distractions. We may add more aspects of the game as time goes on and we would be interested in any suggestions. These images are only an example of how this game works. Please allow us to choose your game type from the following Games in Store list:

A retired mind is no longer burdened by the noise of everyday life. A mind freed to float, like a cork. On the surface of normalness, yet reflecting a depth of insight that most cannot even imagine. This mind is a captive mind, enslaved by its programming. It bogs itself down and thinks it knows. A mind equipped with the tools of reason, but capable of only finding itself a prisoner. The mind that floats upon the surface of normalness is a mind with the capability of understanding the limitless depths of the human experience. It is a mind that might, at any moment, be inspired to flee to the arms of the unthinkable. Suffer the Mind Suffer the Mind is a new version of an old game. The old game was the game with many enhancements.

Suffer the Mind was originally designed for use in Data Center start-ups.
The goal of the game is to guess a number on the touch screen of a presentation device. The device is controlled by a person in front of the presenter. The game presents the presenter with a number to guess. The number cannot exceed 27, the number of buttons on the touch screen. The game is configured so that the number gets harder with each guess. On the third guess, the game shows the target number and tells the presenter the time remaining. The presenter can now choose to stop the game
