Tote bags are used to carry large quantities of items such as groceries or other items. Tote bags typically have handles to facilitate carrying. Traditionally, items such as groceries or other items are placed in a tote bag and the tote bag is placed into a carton. In one traditional method, the entire tote bag and any groceries or other items that are within the tote bag are placed into a standard carton having an open top and bottom. A lid is then placed on the open top and the entire bag, along with the groceries or other items within the bag, is secured within the carton. However, this method does not allow for easy access to the contents inside the bag. In order to provide easy access to the contents of a tote bag, manufacturers have developed tote bag containing a bag-in-box carton. In these types of cartons, the bottom of a bag is used to retain a bag-in-box carton. Once the contents of the bag are removed from the bag, the bag is opened and the bag-in-box carton remains in the open position. One advantage of bag-in-box cartons is that they provide easy access to the contents of the bag. However, there are drawbacks to using bag-in-box cartons. In many instances, the contents of the bag are not retained. Once the contents of the bag are removed from the carton, the contents of the bag are spilled on the carton, floor, etc. Thus, there is a need for a carton that can securely retain the contents of a bag. Further, there are drawbacks to bag-in-box cartons in that they do not provide a convenient means for shipping the cartons. Generally, tote bags and groceries are shipped using tote bags. Further, when the products are shipped in tote bags, the manufacturer uses tote bags having re-useable handles. However, conventional cartons do not provide a way to ship d0c515b9f4
