An animation from a Photoshop tutorial. The more complex the image is, the more complicated it will be to figure out. Let's start with simple tasks and slowly get into the advanced stuff. File > New This opens a new, blank canvas where you can start making images. It's the perfect place to start; you can't mess it up. Save as Save as lets you save your images as different formats, like a PNG, GIF, JPG, TIF, or WMF. This allows you to save in as many different ways as you need and keeps the file size as small as possible. Create a new document This opens up a blank canvas where you can start making new images. Brush Brushes allow you to paint with a brush in a way that you can get a fine, controlled line, apply a large amount of paint, or even apply a blurry effect to your image. Photoshop CS5 has a lot of brush styles with small brushes that are ideal for making fine outlines. Select Select is the best tool to use to select objects. You can use the Lasso tool to select areas of an image; you can use the Rectangular or Elliptical Marquee tool to select areas of an image; or you can use the Magic Wand tool to select areas of an image. Photoshop also has a bucket tool, which is a big selection tool. These tools can save you from having to paint your images with an airbrush or charcoal pencil. Paths Paths enable you to make precise selections of objects in an image by selecting objects directly, or by using objects to create selections. You can also paint with paths, rather than with a pen or pencil. The Path Selection tool makes it easier to create paths and edit paths. Guides Guides are useful to keep straight lines as you create images and make selections. Lens Correction Lens Correction enables you to transform and crop your photos. Tracing Tracing is a useful tool that lets you trace objects or shapes in an image and then add those objects to another image. Layers Layers enable you to organize your layers, change the order, and even split and merge them. Color Color can be used to make images look more professional. You can change colors in an image using an eyedropper. Color is used to create new colors

Cyclone Yasi: State of Queensland, Cairns and Townsville under massive storm threat Updated Queensland's state disaster agency is warning people in northern and central Australia to head to safety immediately after a cyclone with wind gusts of up to 270km/h pounded the north-east. Residents were told to prepare for heavy rain, winds and widespread flooding, while organisers of a music festival in Cairns were forced to cancel it. Director of the State Emergency Service David Elliott said Yasi was a Category Four system and was expected to be the worst cyclone to hit Queensland in more than a decade. He said the state's major cities were under threat. "About six to eight hours after that north-easterly blow, that's when the action gets going. "The best advice we can give you is to head to your nearest major city." Winds are expected to gust to more than 200 kilometres per hour in the north-east, the Gold Coast, Moreton Bay and north-east Queensland. Tropical Cyclone Yasi. (Bureau of Meteorology) A cyclone warning had been issued for Cairns, Barron River and Mackay. "People who are exposed to the north-east winds will be well advised to seek a secure shelter," Mr Elliott said. Cairns International Airport has closed its runway and no flights will be taking off for the next 24 hours. Power lines and trees have fallen on roads and small fires have broken out, with power outages expected in parts of Cairns. There are also road closures and dangerous conditions on the Cunningham Highway between Hervey Bay and Mackay. Cairns Mayor Bob Manning said the storm could be catastrophic. "It's a matter of a matter of minutes, we really don't know what is going to happen," he said. "We have an airport and a very busy port, we're actually doing all we can to keep open the channels. "Any damage to the port itself would be catastrophic." CQN Radio spoke to staff at Ticklepig Brewing Company in Cairns, who said they had been told to stop brewing beer while the cyclone approached. Company owner David Richards said he had not seen a storm this intense in a long time. "I think it's the worst storm I
