The use of “HyperMotion” will be based on the rate of player movement as determined by sensor data during the matches. Two further enhancements will be made to the animation system — the removal of body weight and the transition to the off-ball animation of each player. AdvertisementAn image (data) processing apparatus such as a digital multifunction device outputs data based on a display and a printer, and various data can be output to a data transmission destination from the output data. As an example, the image processing apparatus displays, using a TFT display, various types of images on a monitor. A user can make a copy of the displayed images on the monitor, and the image processing apparatus outputs the images to a printer connected to the apparatus to make a copy of a document. The user can select various image files stored in the apparatus as material to be output, and can output various types of documents, for example, such as documents, charts, photos and others. In a case where the user desires to output data containing the material, the user inputs selection information for the material using a user interface mounted on the apparatus. The apparatus selects the image files from among the ones stored in the apparatus, based on the selection information, and outputs the data containing the selected materials. The user inputting the selection information can specify types of materials on the basis of description information written in the image files. When the user wants to output all the materials without distinction, or to output only some of the materials, the selection information should be input to all the materials. The user requires time and effort to input the selection information to all the materials. When the user makes a copy of a document containing confidential information or paid information, the confidential information or the paid information may be output together with the copy of the document, depending on the way of outputting the materials. When the user makes a copy of a document containing an image of a high degree of importance, the document containing the image may be output as it is without any modification. When the user makes a copy of a document, the images in the document may be copied as-is on copying the document. The images may be output to a printer for a network printer in the case of a copying function of network printing. When the user makes a copy of a document containing image data, the image data may be compressed in order to reduce storage capacity in the apparatus. The apparatus may be provided with a function of modifying image
