To learn more details on data transfer utility quickbooks crack, data transferÂ .1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a support stand for a sign, banner, and similar display device. 2. Description of the Prior Art For advertising purposes, billboards and similar display devices are necessary to attract attention. A problem with these signs is, however, that they are usually larger than any other object in the immediate vicinity of their location. For example, when such billboards are erected on, in, or under the hood of an automobile, the manufacturer must remove any advertisements which the automobile will carry. This, of course, is impractical for advertisers and is, therefore, expensive. Furthermore, such sign support stands are frequently left on top of billboards and on other signs, thereby, for example, damaging or obscuring their other advertisements. Furthermore, such a billboard stand on the automobile necessarily interferes with the normal operation of the automobile. Also, if the user of such a sign stand climbs into the automobile, he must balance the sign stand on his head and shoulders while driving. This is a precarious and potentially unsafe position. It has been known to provide some form of sign stand which may be mounted to the back of a car. See, for example, U.S. Pat. No. 4,001,949 of Christenson. This device is mounted to a truck and, thus, is not convenient for every automobile owner. Furthermore, since its installation is limited to particular types of vehicles, the structure and use of the Christenson stand is limited to these particular vehicles. Furthermore, a considerable inconvenience is created with Christenson's support stand since the user must break away from the car to climb into the stand. Furthermore, this particular support is not versatile in size. For example, Christenson states, at column 2, line 63, that this device may be mounted on the back of a truck, at column 2, line 6, that this device is rigid, and at column 3, lines 19 and 20, that its base can be made of a single block of wood. There are also known stands which are not attached to any vehicle but which have support platforms. These devices have a number of problems. One such device is shown in U.S. Pat. No. 1,842,428 of Doran. Since Doran is a stand for a ladder, his device does not have a support stand for advertising purposes. Another such device is shown in U.S. Pat. No 648931e174
