On April 14th, Apple released the iOS 8.4 Beta 1, which is now available for public testing and developers to work with. iOS 8.4 is Apple's biggest iOS release ever with lots of big new features, including: - iOS Mirroring with the iPad Pro - Timer Refreshes with Handoff - New Sticker Pack - Universal Links - Picture-in-Picture - Enterprise Configuration Profile - More in this post! iOS Mirroring with the iPad Pro For the first time, the iPad Pro is now getting its own shared screen feature called "Mirroring." In iOS 8.4, iOS devices including the iPad Pro can now display a mirrored version of the iOS on a connected Mac. Although this feature is still in beta, it's a great feature for users who need to have an iPhone and iPad be present on the same screen when on the Mac, even if they're in different applications. To use this feature, you'll need to have your iPhone and iPad paired, and you can do this right inside iOS on your iPhone, or in the iCloud Control Panel on your iPad. And while you're using this feature on your Mac, your iPad's web browser will act as the remote. You can do things like read documents while a video is playing, or share screenshots from a web page or message. It might be hard to believe, but this isn't the first time Apple has offered this feature. Back in iOS 7, the iPhone, iPad and iPod touch all have their own screens, which were accessible through a "duplicate" icon on the Mac. And the iPhone 5s and newer have an iPad / iPhone screen feature, which lets you display anything from the iPhone on the iPad, with high quality graphics. Apple says that this iOS 8.4 feature is only available on the iPad Pro right now, but Apple does note that the iPad Air 2 and iPad mini 3 support it as well. But because the feature is still in beta, there are some known bugs, like when you use it, you won't be able to use other features that require connection to Wi-Fi.
