Tutorials are videos that use screenshots of your workspace to teach you how to do things. Tutorials can be downloaded from the Internet or bought from bookstores or online booksellers. Much of Photoshop's potential is in its myriad of features. You can apply effects to images or videos, adjust color, or create videos. This chapter focuses on features that we know you use every day. These are Photoshop's most common features. # Scaling Layers In many of the tutorials that you find for Photoshop, you see images that have been scaled down or made larger than normal. These techniques are used to modify the shape of an image. Making a picture bigger is as easy as scaling the layers. You can stretch or shrink the size of all layers, or just specific layers. Scaling is useful when you want to make sure that an image's size is proportional to other elements in a layered document. The most commonly used feature to resize an image is the Scale tool in the Image menu. To scale an image (refer to Figure 8-1), follow these steps: 1. Make sure that the image is the foreground layer in the Layers palette. This is most likely the layer with the most content on it, so that it's most important to the overall look of your image. If you're in a layered document, you need to have the active layer selected in the Layers palette. The active layer is the one layer that has the menu bar and most of the tools displayed at the bottom of the screen. If you are using a file without a single layer, try clicking the With Layers button at the top of the Layers palette to see the active layer. 2. Choose Scale (or press Shift+Ctrl+A) to open the Scale dialog box. Depending on the size of the document you have selected, the dialog box may be docked to the bottom of the screen. It may also be floating. As you mouse over the dialog box, you'll see a preview of the image in the pane below the dialog box. 3. Use the Scale Percent box at the top of the dialog box to select a scale. You have several choices for the amount of scaling, from 100 percent (double the size) to 0 percent (0 is the same size as the original, which may not be what you want). The Scale percent box is Shishir Bobde is a man on a mission. This 52-year-old executive director of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences aims to hit the 2020 deadline to get India ready for industrialization. That's why he and his colleagues at the Mumbai-based institute are running workshops, seminars and conferences. He said that mostly youngsters from the private sector are attending these seminars and workshops. "We have been running events since 2006. Today we have about 350 such events and conferences. We plan to conduct around 800 such events in the next four years. During the past three years we have conducted about 100 workshops in 150 cities including Delhi, Bangalore, Guwahati, Jaipur, Kochi, Pune, Hyderabad and Lucknow. Our aim is to influence public policy makers to make them aware about the ideas and concepts of industrialization and about its consequences," said Mr. Bobde. His institute is closely associated with the government's National Manufacturing Competitiveness Council (NAMCC). It plans to hold another workshop on "Labor Practices in Manufacturing: Current status and Future Challenges" in Mumbai on Aug. 20-21. He said that many of the private sector participants in the conference were from the automotive industry. "The sector is exposed to a variety of challenge. The sector needs to be revived and has to be drawn closer to the government. The goal is to present the case for industrialization and for the consequences of industrialization. The participants will be coming from the automotive sector. The aim is to create awareness of how government and industrial stakeholders should think about the challenges faced by the industry," he explained. He added that it was not just a think tank for the government but also a lobby group for the private sector. "We have the opportunity to influence policymakers. After the National Manufacturing Competitiveness Council, another is the National Manufacturing Council. Through their deliberations we have to provide the best evidence for the government to formulate policies," he said. He said that his institute would present the case for industrialization to the ministers, CEOs of state-run companies and CEOs of multinational corporations. "We are trying to get the private sector to understand the need for government support and also to understand the true meaning of industry. The private sector doesn't understand how industry has to be revived. We want to show them that industry is a necessity. We want to tell them that industrialization is an option not an option.
