An Italian citizen and a Greek national have been arrested in connection with an alleged plot to down flights of military jets over Malta, according to reports. Inspector-General Carmelo Abela said the two suspects had been arrested after Italian investigators had coordinated with Greek authorities on Monday. Details are still scarce but the report said the pair had been plotting to fly planes loaded with explosives in to the streets of the Mediterranean island. When the jets were supposed to hit their targets, the bombs would be thrown out and the planes would be shot down. Maltese police said they had arrested three men in Malta in connection with the matter, and Italian officials said the men had been in Italy a few days earlier. Defence Minister Pietro Detti ordered a probe into the investigation.

Q: How to implement a refresh, and also some time delay in a directive? I have a directive with a timeout of 2 seconds. But it seems it will throw a refresh on each image. So, how can I achieve this that, it only refresh when I press some button?

app.directive('greenimage', function() { return { restrict: 'A', link: function postLink(scope, element, attrs) { scope.$watch(function() { return element[0].src; }, function (src) { element[0].src = src; }, { immediate: true }); } } });

A: I would suggest using a simple call, if you want to delay the call, using $timeout, or if you really don't want a call you can use requestAnimationFrame(). This will allow you to do something like this:

scope.$watch(function() { return element[0].src; }, function (src) { element[0].src = src; }, { immediate: true })
